SHIPPING & WATERFRONT NEWS

JAPAN'S WARSHIP HARBOR NOTES TO GUARD RUSS FREIGHTER

The Matsen steamer Matsen, due to arrive early tomorrow from the coast, is bringing about 400 sacks of later mail.
The schooner Resolute is being discharged of nitrates at Kahului. The shipment comes from the Chilean coast.
A late radio from the Japanese steamer Nippon Maru says it will arrive from the Orient Wednesday morning.
The steamer Mikahala was discharged of 1600 sacks of sugar and 20 head of cattle shipped from Molokai and Maui ports.
The Matsen freighter Hyades will load sugar at several island ports. The steamer will be given more than 5000 tons of the product before leaving Hilo for San Francisco.

The inter-island steamer Mauna Loa to depart for windward Hawaii tomorrow afternoon will carry a large delegation of Carnival visitors.
The steamer Wallei now discharged of sugar and cattle has been placed on the berth to carry general cargo to Mahukoua, Kawaihae and points along the coast of Hawaii.
All steamers in the inter-island service to depart for Hawaii, Maui and Kauai early this week will be filled with visitors who have spent the past few days in this city sharing Carnival pleasures.

With more than 5000 tons of sugar supplied the Matsen Navigation steamer Mauna Loa for the coast, the vessel will steam at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Mauna also is taking a large list of cabin passengers. A late mainland mail will be forwarded in the Mauna.
Delayed at island ports, the American-Hawaiian freighter Alaskan, now at Hilo, is expected to complete a cargo of 11,000 tons of sugar at Hilo by this evening. The vessel arrived at the Hawaii port last Friday.

NAVY PREPARES EXHIBITS FOR BIG EXPOSITION

[By Latest Mail]
WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Navy Department is making preparations for its exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, which is expected to be the most complete the department has ever shown. Howard A. Banks, private secretary to the secretary of the navy, has gone to San Francisco to arrange for the installation of the exhibit. The navy's chief exhibition will be the navy itself. Both the Atlantic and Pacific fleets will be at San Francisco at various times during the exposition. It is planned to keep a considerable section of the fleet there at all times, including the Oregon and Sonoma, which will be moved to a wharf. All vessels will be accessible to visitors each day. Main exhibit on shore.
The main exhibit of the navy on shore will be in the Palace of Machinery. There the principal attraction will be a revolving cyclorama depicting the evolution of the navy. The cyclorama will include all ships of the old and new navy, and will show the gradual but steady development achieved from the days of John Paul Jones to the advent of the superdreadnought.

There will also be exhibited to the public such naval munitions as a complete torpedo, fixed ammunition of the smaller caliber, as well as armor-piercing projectiles, powder in bags as it is used and the hand weapons of the wooden navy, such as cutlasses, rifles and marlin spikes.
There will be installed a complete wireless outfit, a semaphore signaling apparatus, the new gyroscopic compass, submarine periscopes, range finder, sounding machines and telegraph instruments used for communication on men-of-war. A large working model of the drydock Dewey, containing a model of a modern battleship, will be in constant operation, as well as a model of drydock No. 4, at the New York navy yard, equipped with a large locomotive crane.
Ship Model to Be Shown.
Exact models of all classes of ships, from the sailing ship of old to the modern man-of-war, dreadnoughts, battleships, destroyers and auxiliary vessels, including most vessels that comprised the Spanish war fleet, will be distributed throughout the exhibition rooms. In the Palace of Liberal Arts the navy will have an additional exhibit in which will be shown a model of the Naval Academy and specimens of work done by midshipmen, relics of the old Maine, historical relics and pictures and portraits of some of the most distinguished secretaries of the navy, and guns of various calibers from the 18-caliber to 6-inch. In that room will also be exhibited the famous painting by William F. Halsall, showing the Oregon in pursuit of the Cristobal Colon on the south coast of Cuba July 3, 1898.

SOMETHING FOR THE YOUNG-STER.
Lemon cheese makes a healthy filling for sandwiches for the lunchbox. Place in a double boiler, or in a bowl in a saucepan containing boiling water, one cup of powdered sugar, four tablespoons of butter, the juice and rind of two lemons, and three well beaten eggs. Cook, stirring constantly till the mixture is very thick; when cool, put in a jar with a close-fitting lid and it will keep for weeks.
Orange ginger cakes are also good for the little folks to take to school. Heat one and three-fourths pounds of

First Verse.
Oh! Captain Weeden was his name,
A jolly dog was he;
He's sailed the seven oceans,
And he's sailed on every sea.
It's Weeden when he is ashore,
And Weeden when he is afloat;
And we hope that he will land us
From this jolly polly boat.

Chorus.
It's a long way to Honolulu,
When the Captain leads the way.
It's a long way around the ocean,
To Honolulu bay.
It's good-bye then to San Francisco,
Good-bye to U. S. A.;
We are sure that we've passed the little islands,
But the Captain knows the way.

Second Verse.
The Captain took his chart and found,
A little spot of land;
He thought for this the passengers
Would very likely stand.
He never used a compass,
Or a sextant; night or day,
But he always said, "Just wait a bit,
I'm sure I know the way."

Chorus.
It's a long way to Honolulu,
But the Captain knows the way.
It's a long way to that volcano,
Which spurts fire all day.
If we ever see San Francisco,
Or get back to U. S. A.,
We will have to get the cook to do the steering,
Till the Captain finds the way.

Third Verse.
The Captain changed his course,
To see if anything was there.
He sailed northwest and then due south,
And filled us with hot air.
"I know Hawaii's on the map,
And somewhere near," said he,
"So we'll steer a course obliquely
And we'll strike the China sea."

Chorus.
It's a long way to Honolulu,
It's a long way by ship.
With a Captain from Philadelphia,
And a crew on a maiden trip.
But the Purser is keeping boarders,
And he don't care a rap.
So we'll sail around the whole Pacific
Ocean,
And forget about the map.

Fourth Verse.
One day the Captain thought he smelt
A little off-shore breeze.
He took another sniff and said,
"I smell banana trees."
The last time I came this way,
I made a landing here,
But they must have moved the island,
So we'll take another steer."

Chorus.
It's a long way to Honolulu,
When you've been ten days at sea.
It's a long way to that old Punchbowl,
It's too far to Waikiki.
And the Captain is still a guessing,
Which way we'd better go;
But the cook says that now we are sailing
Straight ahead for Oahu.

Fifth Verse.
The Captain used to sail a barge,
Which had a line in tow.
With a pilot in the turret then,
He knew which way to go.
He navigated through a gale,
In a side-wheel oyster boat;
But he'll never hit the islands,
'Cause he wants to keep afloat.

Chorus.
It's a long way to Honolulu,
It's a long way to sail.
And the Captain sailed all his schooner era,
In his mother's ten-quart pail;
It's good-bye to Yankee Doodle,
We'll never get back home.
We will all stay out and help the Captain
Guess which way we will roam.

Sixth Verse.
We'll form a little syndicate,
And organize the ship.
We'll put the steward on the bridge,
And strike a red hot clip
For land which seems to be the nearest.
And we'll let the Captain cook.
But we'll never let him steer again—
We know our little book.

Chorus.
It's a long way to Honolulu,
But we'll get there sure some day.
We will all try the navigation,
And we'll surely find the way.
With the Captain just peelin' taters,
And the mate stewed safe away;
We will all learn how to do the steering,
And we'll land on Ha-wa-ay.

melanges and three-fourths of a pound of shortening over a slow fire; when blended, beat well and add three-fourths of a pound of brown sugar, two and one-fourth pounds of flour, one ounce of ground ginger, one grated nutmeg, one-half cup of orange and one level teaspoon of soda. Work the dough well and leave in a cool place over night. In the morning roll thin, cut in squares, brush with milk and bake in a moderate oven.

A very nutritious supper dish for the children is made by heating two cups of milk until it almost boils, add the strained juice of half a lemon and sugar to taste. Let this stand until it curdles, strain and serve.—Woman's World for March.
